THE JUNIOR CLASS rushes the field ready to come out on top. "We in no way, shape, or form thought we would win. We just planned on doing our best," said junior Molly Stopper. The juniors won 7-0.

Students work through summer

It is no surprise that both our athletes and performers spent their summers training and practicing. At FC we take pride in our students and their hard work and pushing themselves to be the best they can be. When the season comes to an end, students know they did all they could do. Luckily, the season is just starting.

First we will start with performing arts. The marching band and theatre department have been hard at work for the summer duration. The groups worked on debuting shows for their 2019-20 season.

In theatre students worked on Ashes by former theatre director Chris Bundy. The show stars both current students and alumni. The show ran here at FC July 26 and 27. The Theatre Department took the show to the Edinburgh Fringe Festival at the beginning of this month. The production is a fresh post-mortem look at death and the possibilities of life for our remains in the absence of a soul.

As for the marching band they debuted their show SynchroniCITY on Aug. 9. The show features work from artists like The Police and Björk. The main characters are just everyday citizens in the big city of New York. However, the two run into each so much that in a big city it is anything but coincidental. The marching band start contests next month and hope to bring home the gold as much as possible.

Over the summer our junior and senior girls worked for the annual Turkey Bowl.

The Turkey Bowl has always been a great kick-off event for the beginning of the school year. During summer break the girls practiced with their coaches for the big game on Aug. 2. The juniors won this year 7-0. This is the first time in six years that the Junior Class has won. Maybe next year the juniors will keep their winning streak and prove to be the ruling class.

Our student athletes also charged into summer with their heads held high.

Summer did not stop any athlete from conditioning for the upcoming fall sports season. From football to tennis, each team spent weeks practicing. Game season is only beginning so there is plenty of time to catch the teams at games.

While summer may be wrapping up, we have so much to look forward to. Why dread school when there are so many opportunities for memories. Last year we were really involved but we can do even better. Get involved FC and make this a year to be remembered.
